WALRUS

A FILM BY
KOLBJÖRN GUWALLIUS

Synopsis

It's freezing cold in the Öresund strait in winter. Even though the thermometer not often shows anything below a couple of degrees minus, the barometer is set on a raw humidity and the wind is pushing on from the North Sea. Would you get the idea to jump into the pitch-black Öresund naked in these circumstances – without nothing that even looks like a sauna nearby?

That's exactly what the Walruses do. But how can they stand it? And why? The film Walrus is a funny and thoughtful short documentary about four people challenging themselves. It also turns our expectations of a winter bather upside down. After all, the Walruses are neither heavily trained athletes or old, wind-torn men...
